Allan and John Smith Allan have ceased to be members of the firm of Allans, who are the proprietors of the Allan line of steamships. The firm name of H. & A. Allan will still continue to be used.

REV. J. GOUGH BRICK, of Shaftsbury Church of England mission, arrived from Peace river to-day, having left on May 21st. Crops were further advanced there when he left than at Edmonton now, although seeding was two weeks later than usual. Snow was very deep during the past winter and a crust formed which caused considerable loss of horses amongst the Indians near Dunvegan and Fort St. John's. Rabbits are becoming numerous and a number of moose were killed so that the Indians did not suffer much from hunger. But the Beaver Indians, the natives of Peace river, are rapidly dying out and will soon be extinct. They are being replaced by Crees and halfbreeds from the Saskatchewan.

THE Manitoba and Northwest conference of the Methodist church met at Winnipeg on Wednesday, June 8th.

T. G. PEARCE, of Fort Saskatchewan, has been appointed agent of C. P. R. lands in the Fort Saskatchewan district.

WINNIPEG Tribune: A large party of Dakota farmers arrived in the city on Tuesday and left a few hours after for Edmonton, where land has been selected for settlement.

MESSRS. Alex. Taylor and David Taylor, of the Bresaylor settlement, near Battleford, and James Brown, of Prince Albert, arrived last week on a visit to relatives and to inspect the country.

A MEMBER of J. B. Tyrrell's geological survey party arrived on Monday's train with a portion of the outfit, including a boat, and is now on the way to Athabasca Landing. Mr. Tyrrell will explore Lake Athabasca this season.

A PUBLIC meeting was held at J. G. Otte-well's house, Clover Bar settlement, last week, to consider the question of forming a statute labor district. A motion to form a municipality was negatived, but a motion to form a statute labor district, to comprise two townships, was carried.

MONTREAL Star: Hormidas Gariepy, who left Montreal on March 10th last, along with Rev. Abbe Morin and the delegation of the French Canadian colonists for Edmonton, has returned to the city. He speaks in the highest terms of that district and the many advantages which it offers to the colonists. He has purchased property in the town, and intends to move there next spring.

ROBT. KERR, who has taken a claim on the Battle river below the Dried Meat lake, confirms the report published some time ago in this paper as to the value of a mineral spring discovered there. He has been informed by several of the residents that they have received very great benefit for rheumatic troubles from the use of its water. The water is not clear. It has some dark colored matter in it resembling soot and ashes, and has a strong, somewhat, sulphurous smell. Mr. Kerr did not taste it, but it gives a most refreshing feeling to the hands, if washed in it. There are several springs of the same nature in the vicinity.

R. McKERNAN returned on Monday from a trip with a party of land prospectors around the Beaver Hills, taking in a part of the Battle river. The prairie region outside the Beaver Hills and along the Battle river is very dry. Where the country was in former years so wet as to be almost impassible it is now quite dry. Many large ponds have dried up. The heavy rain of Thursday of last week was only a light drizzle where he was at the time, south of Beaver lake. At Beaver lake the wild fowl of the lake are becoming a nuisance to the farmers. Cranes are particularly destructive to newly sown grain. The Beaver river, which is the outlet of Beaver lake, is perfectly dry at the outlet, but further down water rises in it from springs, and a small stream flows. Rounding the point of the Beaver Hills, coming towards Fort Saskatchewan, between the hills and the river, the rainfall had been heavy as at Edmonton. This experience bears out that of many years past as to the difference of rainfall in the Edmonton district proper, on each side of the Saskatchewan, and that of the more open plains south and east of the Beaver Hills. Edmonton has always an assured rainfall sufficient to produce crops, while outside there is not an equal assurance.

THE increase of German settlement in Edmonton district this year has been enormous. Last year the Dunmore colony of about 100 souls arrived in May. They split and formed five settlements, on Stony Plain, at Riviere Barre, on the Beaver Hills, on the Rabbit Hill, and on Peace Hill Plain. The settlers in all of these settlements were well pleased with their locations, and so informed their friends by letter, and as soon as spring opened the friends began flocking in, by train and stage. The Stony Plain settlement alone has now sixty families, that at Rabbit Hill over 50, that on the Beaver Hills, below Fort Saskatchewan, not less than twenty-five, and Peace Hill Plain at least as many. And they are coming from Southern Manitoba, from Waterloo, Ont., from Minnesota and from Europe direct. The Germans are probably the most practical farmers in the world. They know good country when they see it. The Edmonton district suits them.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, JUNE, 9, 1892

WINNIPEG EXHIBITION.

The Winnipeg exhibition, which will open on July 25th, is an affair of more than ordinary importance to every section of Manitoba and the Northwest. The idea of a grand general exhibition where the products of all parts of Central Canada can be seen in competition is a good one from every point of view, and Winnipeg is the proper place at which to hold such an exhibition. It gives everyone of the widely scattered settlements in the Northwest the opportunity of sizing up with its distant neighbors, finding out in what it is excelled and in what it may excel. It also gives the intending settler, or investor, or chance visitor, the opportunity of seeing and judging for himself as to which section of the country offers the greatest advantages; and let it not be forgotten that it also gives an opportunity for increasing the population and wealth of each district according to the amount of energy displayed in placing its advantages before the world. It will not do to ignore this exhibition. To ignore is simply to be left in the race. For in the face of the efforts that are being made by many districts to advertise themselves, and the large attendance that there is sure to be owing to the special inducements offered by the C. P. R. and the energy of the managers of the exhibition; the district that does not make an appearance, and a good appearance there, will suffer seriously in reputation, which means financial loss. The importance to the Edmonton district of making a good appearance there cannot be overrated. We have received a large immigration during the present and past seasons, probably larger than other other section of the Territories, and the people are good people. They are industrious, thrifty and law abiding, but very few, if any of them, have large means. Other sections of the Northwest have not received as many people, but have received far more wealth. It is a patent fact that there are certain prejudices generally held against this district, which cause men of means, as a rule, to choose other and less desirable localities for settlement and investment. These prejudices are chiefly against our northerly and westerly situation. The theory is that if certain climatic disadvantages occur and increase with distance west of Winnipeg, they must be found in their greatest extreme at Edmonton, which is the furthest west settlement of all. So, too, if the Riding Mountains are more frosty than Brandon, because further north (which is not the reason) Edmonton being so much further north must be proportionately more frosty. These are arguments that are used with effect against Edmonton by every other settlement in Manitoba or the Northwest, and admit of only one convincing answer, which this Winnipeg exhibition enables us to give if taken advantage of. Last year Edmonton took first prize at the Winnipeg exhibition for native grasses and for grain in straw, and this fact has been an important influence in increasing the immigration this year. But the effect will not last for ever and the lesson should be repeated. While we should be careful to keep well up in the competition of agricultural productions, we should not forget those other resources of the district in which we have no other competition. The point should be brought out with great clearness that while we can raise wheat as good as, or better than, any other district of the Territories, we have many advantages over and above those possessed by any other agricultural district. Advantages tending to the comfort and pleasures of life which may be enjoyed by the farmer himself, as well as the mere making of dollars to be enjoyed chiefly by the railway company, the merchant and the machinery manufacturer. By all means no time should be lost in making the preparations necessary to cause Edmonton to take that leading position at the Winnipeg exhibition, which, for its own credit, and profit, and the credit and profit of the whole Northwest, it should take.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the BULLETIN,

SIR,—I have read your recent article upon the "Single Tax" with much interest, and though it is perhaps, the best argument I have yet seen against its adoption, I think that something may still be said on the other side of the question. The BULLETIN asserts that "Wealth is labor stored in such form as to be available in exchange for other labor," and then in another place refers to land as a "form of wealth."

Now, Sir, you will probably admit that no wealth can be produced without labor; but land is not, and cannot, possibly, be produced by labor. The entire human race can never create or produce a simple atom of land. Wealth is not only past labor stored in a form convenient for exchange, or the satisfaction of need or desire. It is the result of the expenditure of productive labor upon lands or upon materials obtained from it, the land being as indispensably necessary for the production of any conceivable form of wealth as is labor itself. Again, you say that "land has no other value than that given by the hand of man." If this is the case, and the value of land depends on improvements alone, the question may be asked,—If the greatest city in the world (where, of course, the greatest amount of improvements on land exists) should suddenly become uninhabitable, what value would the enormous improvements there give to the land? As a matter of fact the value of land is not given to it by the hand of man. It is due to the presence of a population which must be supported by the use of land. Where population exists land has a value. This value may not be so great as that which figures on the blackboard of the real estate agent, but it is an actual value, nevertheless. It may be said that if land in itself has value it must be a "form of wealth"; but value should not be confused with wealth. For example, a promissory note, or a bankbill, has value, but the destruction of a bankbill, promissory note, or other evidence of debt, is no loss to the whole community at all, for what one man loses another would gain. Neither is value the same thing as utility, for nothing, however, useful is of value, unless some person is willing to exchange labor, or the product of labor for it. The actual value of land may be measured by the degree of its superiority in point of location, convenience, (when not superior in capacity or quality) over that of any land which may be had for nothing. This value is created by the community as a whole, not by the labor of any one individual and attaches to the land irrespective of the presence or absence of improvements upon it. The proposition to tax land values, without regard to improvements, is, therefore, neither unjust nor suicidal, and so far from being based on entirely false premises rests upon grounds which cannot be disproved. It will not discourage the cultivation of land, because all branches of agriculture and all other industries are simply that form of co-operation, that a subdivision of labor, employed upon land and upon materials derived from it, which constitutes civilization itself. The only true encouragement that can be given to the use of that which is necessary to the existence of every human being is to make labor free to use any land not already in use. This, at present, is not done, and it will never be done by any improvement in the present system of taxation. Nothing can be more natural, more just or equitable than that land values, created by society as a whole, should be made the subject of all taxation. What can be more reasonable than that the value of land, which, according to Henry George, arises only as the need of some public or common revenue begins to be felt, which increases as population increases, and in proportion to the need of increased public revenue, should be taken for the benefit of the whole community?

Yours, respectfully,
A BELIEVER IN THE SINGLE TAX.
